

London, 13 May, 1741.

I Having been sollicitated, by friends who are pleas'd to approve of STONEHENGE, to publish the further description of the Temples of the DRVIDS in the Brittannic Isles: am encourag'd to propose it, by way of subscription, which will enable me to do it, sooner than otherwise I thought of. This Volume will contain that other very extraordinary work of that sort, at ABURY in north Wiltshire, together with some others not less remarkable. There will be many copper plates, which for the most part are already engraven. It will be printed of the same size as STONEHENGE, but somewhat thicker in bulk, so as to bring the price to subscribers only, to a Guinea: which is desired to be paid down, to me. I propose to deliver the book in sheets sometime in the Year 1742. of which publick notice will be given. There will be but 250 copies printed, unless more are subscribed for.
